Letting Go...

A Mother's Perspective

When little Jimmy Bennett came to camp last summer, he had just turned 3 years old. How did his mother, Molly, feel about letting him go? "It was scary! I was so nervous—even though I knew camp would be good for him!" Molly would know. She grew up at Bay Cliff.

"My sisters Kelly, Katie, Anna and I were "staff kids" at camp. We lived in the cabins with the campers and did everything with them. As we grew older, we had the blessing of working here as staff members. So I knew what camp would be like for Jimmy." Even with her years of Bay Cliff experience though, it was a strain on her heart when she brought him to camp. "I had no idea what parents go through until I was the parent saying good-bye," confided Molly. "I trusted camp completely to take care of Jimmy, but it was being separated from him that was so hard. There is a unique element at play when you know your child needs a lot of extra attention and care because of his special needs. That makes it harder to let him go."

Jimmy was born with spina bifida, a congenital deformity that affects his muscle strength and ability to walk. Jimmy has been involved in therapy for much of his young life, and he was referred to camp to continue the course of physical and occupational therapy. "Jimmy's young age is a pivotal time to intervene, so I knew he needed Bay Cliff," continued Molly. "Also, in March of last year, he had hip surgery and was very weak afterwards. He really needed the intensive therapy Bay Cliff gives to build up his strength and endurance and to help him persevere in trying. My goal was to get him walking again."

And walk, he did! "I was thrilled with his progress! It was at camp that he really started to use his crutches. He walked so much at camp that he almost regressed when he came home. That bolted me into action to make sure he continued to walk as much as possible!"

The strain of being separated from her son eased for Molly but never completely went away. "It helped that I knew he was in good hands. It was hard to be apart, but the separation enhanced our relationship. The re-uniting at the end of camp was powerful! It was like we had a renewed appreciation for each other."

Jimmy Bennett

Summer is fast approaching, and Molly says Jimmy is already looking forward to camp. "He still talks about his friends, the counselors, and his therapists. And he talks about the rules!" She knows "letting go" will be a little easier this time. "I am so grateful that he has this priceless opportunity. Bay Cliff helped mold my sisters & me into who we are today. It instilled in our family an appreciation for the precious gift of life. At Bay Cliff, the staff & campers learn what matters most in life. That my son can experience this, too, is truly a gift."

Spring Cleaning

Pioneers to the Rescue!

When the snowbanks disappear and the flowers once again bloom, we know it's time to get camp ready for the summer! There are leaves to be raked, gardens to be cultivated, windows to be washed, firewood to be cut, the pool to be cleaned & filled, and cabins to be swept and made ready. That's just the start of a long list of chores and special projects! With so much to do before the busy camping season starts—who you gonna call? The Telephone Pioneers of America! They made the call to us!

Bill Menhennick
"Pioneer Patriarch"

The Pioneers are the largest corporate volunteer organization in the world. They have been partnered with Bay Cliff since Bill Menhennick and Bernie LaBonte installed the first phone at camp almost 60 years ago. They were smitten by the children... and they never left!

Since that time, Pioneers from across the state and mid-west region have brought their energies, talents, and volunteer spirit to camp twice a year—in the spring to ready camp for the summer, and in the fall to prepare camp for winter. From cleaning & sewing, to shingling roofs & fixing screen doors, to white-washing the beach trail fence, to repairing the phones lines... they are ready and willing to do whatever it takes to keep Bay Cliff operating, looking beautiful, and ready for the campers!

Thank you, Telephone Pioneers!

Adaptive Kayaking at Bay Cliff...

Bay Cliff has long been a place where dreams come true for children and adults with disabilities. Sometimes, this happens on the water!

In 1998, Bay Cliff brought adaptive paddling to the Upper Peninsula. Janet Zeller, president of the American Canoe Association and an accomplished paddler with disability, served as the Lead Instructor Trainer. She was joined by Nancy Uschold, Bay Cliff and Marquette-based physical therapist. The program was a great success, and Bay Cliff Health Camp joined an elite number of training sites across the nation to host adaptive paddling workshops.

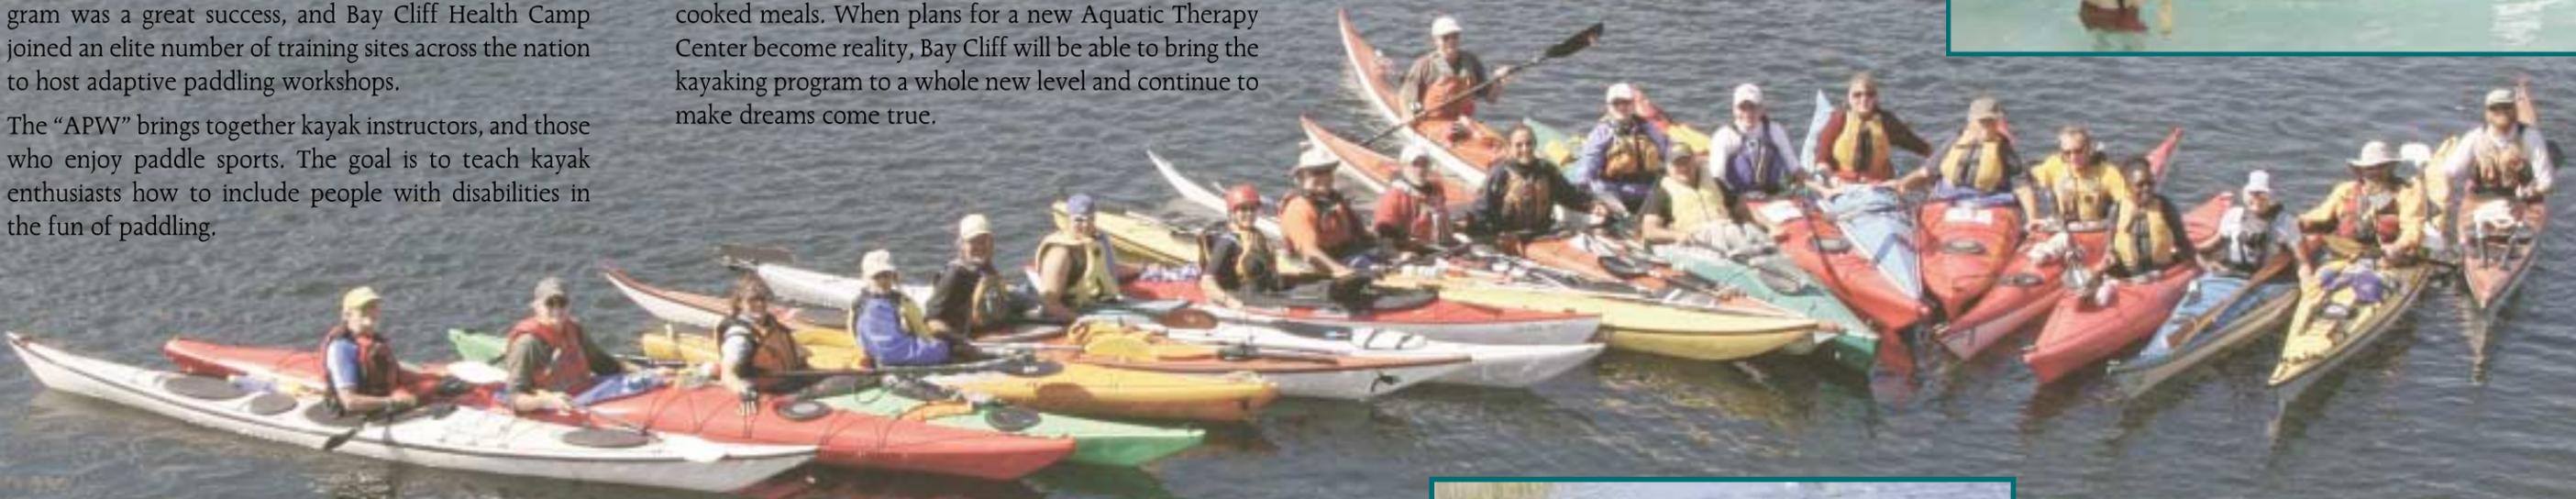

The "APW" brings together kayak instructors, and those who enjoy paddle sports. The goal is to teach kayak enthusiasts how to include people with disabilities in the fun of paddling.

The workshops have enabled Bay Cliff to safely offer a kayaking program for teen campers each summer, and provide adaptations so that all teens can participate. Campers start with practice sessions in the pool and then graduate on to Lake Independence. In addition, adults with disabilities participating in Bay Cliff's Camp Independence and polio survivors attending Bay Cliff's Post-Polio Wellness Retreat have enjoyed the opportunity. Campers in Camp YesICan, a program for children with limb loss, have learned that they, too, can kayak.

Bay Cliff is an ideal site to learn kayaking, located on the shores of Lake Superior, with its accessible heated pool, nearby open water, and comfortable housing and home-cooked meals. When plans for a new Aquatic Therapy Center become reality, Bay Cliff will be able to bring the kayaking program to a whole new level and continue to make dreams come true.

"The great thing about kayaking is that it is something virtually anyone can do. Water has no stairs, curbs, or steep hills, that the folks with disabilities encounter when on land. Instead of using braces, crutches, canes or a wheelchair, the paddler becomes part of a boat—gliding across the water."

—Nancy Uschold, P.T., Instructor Trainer

"Every year, I am amazed at the spirit and determination the campers show in learning to paddle and achieving their goals. Seeing them out on the lake is its own reward—the smiles on camper faces, the pride in learning a new skill, the awe in seeing an eagle soar overhead, or the laughter as we enjoy an all-out water fight on a hot summer day."

—Nancy Uschold, P.T., Instructor Trainer

"With adaptive paddling training, you can help friends and family members with disability to learn to paddle. Because there are no barriers on the water, paddling is open to everyone and spans the ages. It becomes a life-long activity."

—Sam Crowley, Instructor Trainer

Will You Join Us?

The 2011 Campership Appeal... Coming this Summer!

The Campership Appeal was established in 2009 to assure that there is funding for every child with disabilities who attends Bay Cliff in the summer. While Bay Cliff has many financial needs, including facility improvements and expanding programs, a gift to the Campership Appeal will provide funding specifically for the children's summer therapy program. The Campership Appeal is hugely important to Bay Cliff's efforts to serve the children.

Last year's Campership Appeal was very successful, raising over $112,000 in support of the children's program. This year, we hope many additional individuals, families, businesses, and organizations will join us in this important effort.

The Campership Appeal will be coming your way... just as we begin another great summer at Bay Cliff. Please watch for it and help send a child to camp.

Thank you for your generous support!
